EXECUTIVE SUMMARY

Over a 2026-08-22 → 2026-08-24 window we watched the live availability of every Kiss My Axe Alexandria experience through your FareHarbor booking feed. In that window 27 distinct time-slots reached their start with zero bookings — empty sessions on the floor. Valued at your own published minimum booking prices, that's an estimated $14,079 of inventory that expired unsold.*

The pattern is not random. The idle time clusters in weekend daytime, and one product line — Glow Darts — sat empty far more than any other (24 empty listings). These are exactly the slots a demand platform is built to fill.

The opportunity in one line: your evenings and axe sessions sell; your weekend-daytime and Glow Darts slots don't. OneTap exists to put heads in those specific empty slots — and you only pay when we fill one that would otherwise have run empty.

HOW WE MEASURED THIS — NO GUESSWORK

This isn't a survey or an estimate of foot traffic. We polled the real-time availability that your FareHarbor system publishes, checking each session close to its start time. A slot counts as "empty" only when it had zero customers at the moment it began — a session that genuinely ran with nobody booked. Sessions that sold even one booking are excluded. The method is conservative: because your system hides exact headcounts, a half-full session is not counted as empty, so the real idle time is likely higher than what's shown here.

Glow Darts and party packages are the softest inventory

EXPERIENCE	EMPTY	BOOKED	IDLE VOLUME
Glow Darts - 2-12 people	24	0
Axe Throwing & Glow Darts - 6-12 People	11	0
Ultimate Party Package - 6+ People	9	0
Axe Throwing - 2-7 People	8	4
Axe Throwing - 8+ People	6	3
Axe Throwing Date Night - For Two	1	2

Axe throwing carries most of the bookings; Glow Darts, the combo, and the Ultimate Party Package are where sessions repeatedly opened with no one in them.

The dead windows

The emptiest slots concentrate on Sunday during the day — the hours below repeatedly reached start time with nothing booked. These are your prime targets for a fill campaign.

THE RECOVERABLE PRIZE

≈ $29,211 / week

Extrapolating the tracked idle inventory to a full week. Recover even a quarter of it — a realistic target for last-minute fill — and that's about $2,086 of new revenue from slots that were going to sit empty anyway. Every dollar here is incremental: these seats earn nothing today.

We fill the empty slots — you carry no risk

01 Last-minute demand into your dead windows

We surface your unsold weekend-daytime and Glow Darts slots to nearby last-minute bookers, so the seats that expire empty today get filled.

02 Smart last-minute pricing — you set the floor

A gentle discount on a slot that's about to run empty beats $0. You keep full price on your in-demand evenings; we only flex the inventory you tell us is soft.

03 A live idle-inventory dashboard

The exact tracking in this report, running 24/7 for your venue — so you can see your fill rate and the windows that need attention, in real time.

04 Pay only on filled slots

No subscription, no lock-in. You pay a small share only when OneTap books a slot that would otherwise have run empty. Everything else stays exactly as it is.

The ask: a 20-minute walkthrough where we turn on the live dashboard for your Alexandria venue and agree which windows to open to last-minute demand. First fill within the week.

* Estimated lost revenue values each empty session listing at Kiss My Axe's own published minimum booking price (from-price × minimum party size). Because axe and glow-darts experiences can share the same floor and time, product-level figures may overlap; the 27 distinct idle time-slots is the de-duplicated view. Figures are an illustrative estimate over a short tracking window (7 polls), not audited revenue.
